

In the beginning, there was not.

Time creates space - it is a vessel which holds space.
Space does not hold itself for time, it fills it.

Then, there was. The reason There became then was an unseen force that ripped us all apart and separated us far away from our home - each other. We are together, yet apart, since time is an illusion → a magic trick if you will, which allows us to truly hold space for ourselves To truly seek the light. You do not have light without space. - at least not light you can decipher - all ~~things~~ are relative.
perceptions

Consider us to be looking at ourselves
in a mirror
(through the looking glass)
